

GERMAN POLICE HOLD PREACHERS

Rev. Strohschein and Son Former Inventors Held In Alleged Klan Activities

Frankfort citizens were given a big surprise when an item appeared in the Chicago papers Friday saying that two Chicago ministers well known here, would go on trial that day in Berlin, Germany, charged with attempting to spread the growth in Germany of the Knights of the Firey Cross patterned after the Ku Klux Klan and termed by the German press the "fool's lodge".

They are the Rev. Gotthard Strohschein 54, and his son Otto, 30. According to Associated Press dispatches they were to be deported after the preliminary hearing last Friday or they would have a longer trial and if found guilty, would then be deported.

No interference will be offered by the American consulate unless the two men are found innocent. The father came to Chicago in 1918, after being dismissed from a North Dakota pastorate and nearly lynched for pro-German utterances. He made his home with his brother's step son, Louis Strohschein, 3325 S. Hoyne Ave. With the aid of the Rev. August Fleck of St. Philip Evangelical Church, the son, Otto was placed in charge of an Evangelical congregation at Green Garden, but lost this pastorate.

For a while the elder Strohschein preached at Matteson. Father and son were well known in Frankfort for their work on an airplane which the elder Strohschein had built and which he thought would beat anything in the air. He claimed to have invented a turbine motor which would propel his aircraft at a greater speed than had ever been thought of. In order to get the enterprise under way he needed money and succeeded in getting a number of Frankfort people interested in his undertaking and raised about $1000. Then he went to Chicago with an idea of having his motor built. Later he came back with a story that the people who were to have made his motor had stolen his ideas. Next he said he was going to Berlin and have his motor made there and then bring it to Frankfort. He had all the other parts of the air plane built and ready waiting for the motor to be installed. He and his son left for Germany and have not been heard of until the news of their arrest came. The air plane parts which were mostly built by B. Zechlin of Frankfort are now in storage in a barn in Frankfort still waiting for the motor.

Don Burton Gray of Hillsboro, Ill., is said to have been associated with the Strohscheins in their recent venture in Germany and is accused by the German authorities of fleeing the "fool's lodge" charges three weeks ago. He is said to be in Chicago now. He is 21 years old and described by his friends as a college boy.

Forty persons, alleged to have been connected with the organization, have been taken into custody and other arrests are declared to be imminent. One thousand Germans are credited with holding membership in it.

A complete list of the members of the organization was discovered and the police in the larger cities in Germany have been instructed to arrest all persons figuring on this roster.

It is alleged by the investigators that the organization was financed with funds supplied from Klan circles in America.

The insignia of the organization is a bloody cross, the black, red and white flag of imperial Germany and the anti-semitic swastika. The membership has been largely obtained from the "Vikingbund" and the "Frontbann" notorious fascist groups.

Victory Entertainers
Are Coming

Tinley Park and Frankfort will be the most popular towns this coming week as they are justly proud in announcing that the Victory Entertainers are staging a most popular, thrilling and exciting show of the season. They have booked for a short stay of a few days namely next Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday at Saenger Hall, Tinley Park and Friday and Saturday at Frankfort. At Tinley Park the hall has been renovated and arranged to accommodate most comfortably the amazing large crowds which are expected to come from all surrounding towns.

The show is composed of magic, mysteries, ventriloquism and one of the greatest acts of time which is presented by "Rivers the Handcuff King". We might say he is the champion as he is the only man known today who has ever accomplished this kind of act. He is very successful at it and has staged this act in many of the best shows in the most popular cities of the east.

ate that branches of the order exists in Hamburg, Jena, Dortmund and Cassel, and that the founding of the organization dates back to 1923.

It is the avowed purpose of the knights to gather together men "determined to fight for the liberalization of the fatherland" and "by waging war on Jews, to free the country of undesirables".

The mysterious disappearance of a young adherent of the knights is said to have given police a clew leading to the discovery of the organization. It is presumed the order is a new variation of the German fascist bands which were responsible for the murder of Mathias Erzberger and Dr. Walter Rathenau.

As these organizations are barred under the federal law for "protection of the republic" the assumption is that their backers are now seeking to resuscitate them by copying the American Ku Klux Klan.

It is said, order played an active role in the revolt of the so-called black reichswehr, which started in 1923 in the fortified towns of Kuestrin and Spandau.

The leaders of the order already arrested include former Capt. Klip proth who was found near the Dutch frontier as he was about to enter Holland in an automobile former Lieut. Hildebrandt and a Dr. Huebner.

No record of either of the Strohscheins is in the Chicago directory. Illinois and Chicago officials of the Ku Klux Klan declared that the German order had absolutely no connection with the Klan here.

"The Klan is not branching out into any foreign countries," declared a high official. "The Strohscheins were never heard of here. The Germans seem to be drawing on the success of the Klan here for the benefit of some similar order."

TINLEY POLICE CHIEF LOSES CASE

Joe Greco of Tinley Park Is Found Not Guilty

The hearing in the case of the People of the State of Illinois vs. Joe Greco of Tinley Park, who was charged in the complaint of assault with intent to murder Marshall Schmedeknecht, was heard last Friday afternoon in the court of Judge F. J. Synakiewicz at Blue Island.

After all of the testimony was heard and the case argued by counsel the judge promptly found the defendant not guilty and the case was dismissed.

This is a case growing out of an altercation by the Marshall Fred Schmedeknecht of Tinley Park and Joe Greco, a resident of that village, in which the marshal received a fractured jaw and other injuries. The evidence disclosed the fact that the marshal and not Greco was the aggressor and that Greco acted in self defense.

A representative of the State's Attorneys office was present, and with Attorney Harper of Tinley Park represented the People's case, while Mr. Greco was defended by former Municipal Judge Bernard Barasa of Chicago and Attorney C. H. Parr of Chicago Heights.

The village board of Tinley Park has suspended Mr. Schmedeknecht as police chief.

Another Case of

Reckless Driving

The cemetery hill road south of Mokena was the scene of a serious auto crash Saturday night. A car driven by the son of Nick Hossbach of Frankfort was going south and was followed by a Maxwell Sedan driven by Oscar Peterson of Lockport. Just as the crest of the hill was reached, Peterson sounded his horn and attempted to cut in ahead of the Hossbach car when a Ford coupe driven by Ralph Hacker of Mokena suddenly came up the hill from the south. Peterson failed to dim his lights which blinded Hacker. Peterson could not stop his car and either had to crash into the Hossbach car or Hacker. He tried to swing his car back into line but the rear end crashed sideways into the Hacker car, tearing out the front wheels and crushing the fenders and damaging the car to the extent of $150 or more.

Hacker claimed Peterson did not stop to see what damage he had done but was busy trying to get his own car out of the ditch. When Hacker spoke to him about a settlement, Peterson refused to do anything and Hacker had him arrested. Not having any money with him to pay or a cash bond, Peterson left his car for security. The case was set for a hearing before Judge John F. Schultz for Monday night at the city hall. When the case was called, Peterson asked for a 10 day continuance to Sept. 24th, which was granted, after he put up a $50 cash bond. From present indications this will be a hot case. Peterson is charged with speeding, reckless driving and failure to dim his lights.

Frankfort Vs.
Mokena Sunday

There is going to be a hot time at Mokena this coming Sunday when the Mokena and Frankfort baseball teams will play on the Schiek diamond. Both teams are confident of victory and a close game is anticipated. A large crowd of fans is expected. As both of these teams are strong a red hot game is expected from start to finish.

Fire Destroys
Robb Home At Evergreen Park

The home and fruit and vegetable stand of John Robb at Evergreen Park were destroyed by fire of unknown origin last Saturday night while the family was away on a week end visit.

Neighbors discovering the flames gave an alarm and the Fire Department of Evergreen Park, Oak Lawn responded, but the blaze had gained such rapid headway that the buildings were doomed. The fire men then turned their efforts toward saving the buildings adjoining the burning property and managed to save them after a hard fight. The Oak Lawn fire fighters were under the command of Chief Nicholas Schmalen while John M. Cleveland manned the engine. The Oak Lawn firemen showed their ability as fire fighters even tho their clothes were ruined.

Owing to the fact that Evergreen Park has no water supply, it was a difficult matter to fight the fire and it was only subdued after using the chemicals and water from deep cisterns.

Hundreds Attend
Palos Flower Show

The Twentieth Anniversary Flower Show given Saturday September 12th at the Palos Improvement Club House was the biggest and most successful of any show given in recent years.

Due to the weather the last few weeks before the show, it was indeed a pleasant surprise to see the large exhibits of flowers and vegetables, each one of which showed that the Palosonian was as interested as ever in his garden and home.

Mrs. Alfred F. Pashley won the first prize in the flower exhibit with a total of 36 points. The silver vase for bouquets given by the committee in charge was the prize. Mrs. George B. Ward won second prize for her flower exhibition, the number of points reached being 29. Her prize was 50 varieties of Iris, presented by the Vaughn Seed Co. The Lawndale Boys Camp received 20 varieties of peonies as the third prize in this exhibit.

Mrs. Fred C. Dunlap won the prize in the Domestic Science exhibit receiving a pie plate on a nickel holder. This very beautiful gift was the present of the Palos Woman's Club.

Mr. George E. Weeks, President of the Palos Improvement Club presented a five dollar gold piece to Mr. Mitchell as the prize to the winner of the most number of points in the entire Flower Show Exhibition. Mr. Mitchell also received a year's subscription to "House and Garden" as the prize for the highest number of points in the vegetable exhibit. This was Mr. Edward Tourtelot's gift as Mayor of Palos.

The presentation of a very beautiful jardonnier to Mr. and Mrs. Alfred F. Pashley in appreciation of their efforts in making each of the twenty flower shows a success, was the chief event of this "Twentieth Annual Fruit and Flower Exhibition."

The efforts of Mr. and Mrs. Claude Buck in making the decorations very beautiful, were highly appreciated by all who attended. There were in the neighborhood of fifty paintings in the non-competitive art exhibit, among which, the works of Claude Buck, Will Moore and Miss Vera Lund. Mrs. Buck's handmade paper flowers in imitation of apple blossoms which were pinned on all who entered, were among the many details that helped to make this show distinctive.

Mr. Martin Sprengling exhibited (continued on back page)

Former Oak Lawn
Teacher Dies

Oak Lawn was grieved last Wednesday at the news of the death of Mrs. Emmeline Simpson, 82, greatly beloved by all and as her life was spent in well doing she is mourned by the whole community.

Mrs. Simpson came to Oak Lawn 66 years ago at the age of 16, from Troy, Mich., as a school teacher having lived here since, teaching school many years and many Oak Lawn people owe much of their store of knowledge to the faithful and efficient teaching as well as the example of the life which Mrs. Simpson lived.

In 1869 she was married to Charles Simpson and to this union were born three children.

Funeral services were held Sept. 11th from the home of her daughter, Mrs. Bell Johnson, Rev. Brockhaus officiating. Burial was in Mt. Greenwood cemetery.

Those who survive her are: one daughter, Mrs. Bell Johnson of Oak Lawn, two sons, Elmer of Michigan and Bert of Chicago, five grandchildren and a host of friends. As a special mark of respect, the business houses remained closed during the funeral services, and many of her former pupils attended.

Injured In Auto
Crash on Lincoln
Highway Sunday

While Harold Heisner, oldest son of Conrad Heisner, and Harold Knickeron, son of Theo. Knickeron of Green Garden, were returning from Chicago Heights Sunday evening in their Ford Sedan, they were struck by a Ford coupe on the Lincoln highway east of the Illinois Central viaduct, which was driven by a man from Gary, Ind., said to be in a drunken condition. All three men were rushed to the St. James hospital in Chicago Heights. The Gary man had only a few cuts and bruises. Harold Heisner had fingers on both hands cut which required 7 stitches. He was also hurt on the chest and limbs and ligament were torn in one knee cap. Harold Knickeron was injured more than the other two. He lost a great deal of blood and was on the operating table quite a while. 32 stitches were taken to sew up cuts about his face and head. The Gary man was taken to the police station by the motorcycle cop.

125 Guests Attend
Oak Lawn Chamber of Com. Banquet

One of the most important civic affairs that have taken place for sometime in Oak Lawn, was the big get-together meeting and banquet of the Oak Lawn Chamber of Commerce held last Thursday night in the new bank building.

A five course dinner was served to about 125 guests. A. H. Behrends, president of the Chamber of Commerce, presided at the program held following the dinner. Mr. Patrick, a professional entertainer of Chicago and two assistants rendered a wonderful program of songs, stories, saxophone and piano music.

The speakers of the evening were; Bob Wallace, Engineer of the Forest Preserves of Cook Co., who gave a highly interesting account of the nature of his work. Mr. Barker of the firm of Barker & Flavin, Engineers of Chicago gave a comprehensive talk on the matter of drainage. Judge Tietzel of Evergreen Park spoke on co-operation of Neighboring Villages. Mr. Thomas of the Illinois Chamber of Commerce, gave a lengthy talk of interest to the business men and which was very well received. Mrs. Agnes Mann, president of the Oak Lawn Community Club, who by the way was the only lady present, gave a fine talk on the activities of the Club.

Much credit is due to the committee on arrangements who made this one of the best conducted meetings held in this section of the county. The arrangement committee consisted of: Geo. Dutton, James Curtis and John T. Emery.

Oak Lawn is surely to be highly complimented for its wonderful spirit of civic pride.

Oak Lawn Girl Is An Autumn Bride

Miss Kasch and Mr. Gunther were quietly married Saturday afternoon at 5 o'clock at the Evangelical Lutheran church, Rev. Brockhaus reading the service.

Miss Louise Krueger and Ray Singleton were the attendants.

After the ceremony a wedding supper was served at the home of the groom's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Wm. O'Brien. Mr. and Mrs. Gunther have gone to housekeeping in Chicago where Mr. Gunther is employed as a typesetter.

LOVE FINDS A WAY

This is one of the many "Two-on-an-Island" stories that have been popular ever since Charles Rade's classic, "Foul Play," was published in 1869. So, of course, it is a story of adventure, love—and sex. Briefly, a young man and a young woman are wrecked in an airplane, land on an out-of-way island inhabited by cannibals, and fall in love. The situation is still further complicated by the fact that the girl is engaged to a man in England and has been brought up among people who are strait-laced and narrow-minded beyond belief. But love finds a way—as it usually does—even on cannibal-infested islands.

A feature of the story, of course, is the study of the girl's mind and heart in her struggle between love and duty, with Mrs. Grundy thrown in for good measure. So it is a story that a woman could write better than a man. The author is a English-woman, Clive Arden. Her story is not only her first novel, but a prize novel. It caused a sensation last year in England, has duplicated that success here and is now being shown in moving pictures in various parts of the country, the picture rights having been purchased for a very large price.

Quite an interesting problem, isn't it—two people in love, rescue improbable and no master handy to tie the knot and transform sorrow to happiness!

PART ONE

Little Notes

Darbury was a small parish possessing an old church, a combined post office and sweet shop, but no actual village street.

As often happens with isolated people and places, the little parish was very self-important. The war and motor traffic had tended to modernize the community; and the new freedom rather went to its head. It was as yet not quite sure of its line, though painfully anxious to appear assured—one half shocked at the other half's doings, and altogether rather mixed.

This had been apparent, a year ago, when divorce had falsified its ominous head for the first time within the memory of living inhabitants. Divorces took place elsewhere, of course, and Darburyites read and discussed the newspaper accounts with avidity; but that such things should happen within their own fold, between people known and even liked by everybody else, was an unheard-of idea. The topic, thrilling in these circumstances. Although it was Major Randall who had obtained the decree; and although his wife, instead of offering a defense, had brazenly gone away with another man, yet most people shrank from his society. As Mrs. Stockley, the widow of the late vicar, sagely remarked: "There are often two sides to these things; you never know."

Even the squire and Mrs. Rochdale, kindest of the "old order," began to show a slight coldness. They placed the hospitable doors of Darbury house ajar, so to speak, instead of wide open, hinting to their only son that a little less golf with the major might be wise. But Hugh laughed at the hint, in his easy-going way. "That's all his funeral, not mine"; thus he waived responsibility for the morals of the house of Randall.

A wholesome young Briton, Hugh would abominate shady actions, if brought actually into contact with them; but he lacked the imagination to visualize what failed to interest him. His own purpose was single, his own heart fixed. Barbara Stockley, only child of the late vicar, had filled it entirely, since the days of frocks and perambulators. Growing up together, inseparable, their engagement was a foregone conclusion. Nobody therefore had been surprised at its public announcement upon Hugh's return from the war.

The wedding had been fixed for the following December. The happy pair were to live in one of the pretty modern houses at Hillbeak during the old squire's lifetime, continuing all their activities in Darbury as usual. Everybody would call upon them; and everything would be nice, respectable and conventional.

But while everybody purred contentedly over this satisfactory romance, a bombshell exploded in their midst, launched by the heroine herself. Instead of spending the next four months amid dainty needlework, her mind oblivious to all save the prospective bridegroom and the dressmaker, she shattered all traditions by announcing her intention to accompany an aunt, Mrs. Stockley's half-sister, to Australia. Darbury gasped. But it gasped yet more upon discovering that the journey was to be made, in ultra-modern style, by airplane. An ordinary ship would have seemed at least respectable.

The ostensible reason given was merely a visit to the aunt's colonial relatives. But, of course, everybody knew better than to believe that; a deeper motive was needed to inspire such a risky wild-goose chase. Could there be private trouble between the engaged couple? But the girl herself went about as usual, only a suppressed excitement deepening the already deep blue of her eyes, bubbling out occasionally into scraps of confidential speech which yet were no confidences at all.

"Such an adventure!" she exclaimed, when Miss Brown sought to probe to the soul of this problem. "The only one I have ever had. There will never be such another chance."

This from one who should have been deep in the adventure of marriage! Miss Brown was rather shocked. Hugh, she learned, had been averse to the idea at first. Quite right and proper! He had also steadfastly refused to go too; and Darbury had agreed with the decision. That a man should give up the routine of autumn pursuits was unheard of. . . . Besides, he managed his father's extensive property, and the harvest would soon be in full swing. Darbury, like Hugh, was essentially practical.

Great difficulty, it transpired over the tea cups, had been experienced in overcoming Mrs. Stockley's objections. But as she, like many weak women, usually took refuge in tears when thwarted, little direct information was obtained.

However, Darbury persevered in its ferreting tactics, at last gaining a little more light. Mrs. Field paid one of her brief visits to her pretty house; and it became known that she had arranged everything. Everybody said "Oh-h!" in a drawn-out syllable which expressed volumes; for Mrs. Field was accustomed to doing extraordinary things, without bowing to convention. The aviator proved to be her cousin, Alan Croft, a man well known in aviation and in the engineering circles of many lands. After having swooped down upon England from Australia in a super-machine of his own design—brilliantly achieving the long test trip with two passengers in addition to his crew—an influential firm had cabled agreement of purchase, pending an immediate, equally successful, return journey. So much they gleaned. But why or how Mrs. Field had maneuvered for Barbara Stockley and her aunt, Miss Dolly Davies, to be his passengers on the return journey, Darbury was left to conjecture, Mrs. Field being a woman who kept her own counsel.

A rumor soon arose that the aviator might be expected at the "House on the Moor," Mrs. Field's home, for the week-end. This, clashing with a council try fete at which most of the Darburyites were assisting, raised them to a state of unusual excitement. He might be there. . . .

"That Won't Matter. He Is Only the Pilot."

II

The Darbury fete, being in aid of a hospital fund, was held in the grounds of a neighboring mansion, the winter garden of which was utilized for dancing.

Barbara and Miss Brown were in charge of the sweets and tobacco stall. After a morning spent in preparations for the fete, and an afternoon behind the stall, Barbara was feeling unutterably bored.

Then, suddenly, she was aware of a man's figure standing near; and knew, without looking up, that she was being intently scrutinized.

"I think you are so brave to fly to Australia!" Miss Brown exclaimed. "And with a strange man, too! Doesn't Mr. Hugh mind?"

Barbara laughed at this typical Darbury remark.

"No! Of course not."

"But suppose you don't like him?"

"That won't matter. He is only the pilot."

Glancing up as she spoke, she gave an involuntary start at finding a direct, piercing look fastened upon her. It was not the rude stare of a man who appraises women as if they were horses; rather did it seem to scatter nonessentials and to probe to the spirit within. For a moment her own eyes seemed held by a curious compulsion.

At the same instant Mrs. Field came briskly round the corner of the tent. "Ah!" she cried. "You are here first, Alan." Then, turning to Barbara, "I want to introduce you both," she said, taking an arm of each.

And Barbara, feeling uncomfortably self-conscious, too bewildered to do more than stammer a conventional greeting, was forced to lift her eyes to his. They were deep-set and gray like those of his cousin, but lacking the tenderness which lurked in hers; the little lines at their corners, surely betokening humor, appeared out of place. In her rapid glance she was dimly aware of great height, broad shoulders and a lean, deeply tanned, clean-shaven face.

"Alan borrowed a car and turned up last night," Mrs. Field smoothed over the impending awkwardness; but at that moment some one called her away.

There fell a silence, which the girl racked her brains in vain to break. She was somehow conscious of feeling acutely disappointed. This was the man who, to her inexperienced mind, had seemed a dim, unreal figure crowned by a halo of glorious achievement! This the heaven-sent deliverer, who, unknowingly, had offered that hidden self the one chance of stretching its cramped wings! Even if, as she had told Miss Brown, it did not matter, it was, nevertheless, very disappointing.

Before the pause became too uncomfortable, Mrs. Field returned and insisted upon having tea. On these occasions tea suggests a gathering of the clans. All the little cliques of the neighborhood meet in the large marquee and discuss the news they have gleaned.

Barbara was detained at the entrance; and Mrs. Field looked at her cousin with kindly enthusiasm, when they found a vacant table.

"Well, Alan? Isn't she a dear girl? And pretty?"

He responded indifferently; stooped down to tuck his Panama hat under the seat; then sat up and ran his fingers through his thick dark hair.

"D—d not in here, Madge!"

She glanced round apprehensively; then leaned toward him. "Alan, for heaven's sake don't upset any of these good people, or she may not be allowed to go, after all!"

A smile of extraordinary infectiousness lit up his face, transfiguring it; the lines of humor proved that they were not, after all, misplaced.

"Try a muzzie, Madge! How the dickens do I know what may upset the old darlings—"

"Hush! Here is Mrs. Stockley."

The grim mask of reserve quickly covered his face again.

The Darburyites, hearing that the stranger had at last arrived, soon clustered round for introductions, anxious to impress him with their own intelligence. But, with Barbara, they were doomed to bitter disappointment; for this hero refused to be lionized, and declined to talk "shop." Their intelligent overtures left him unimpressed; no pumping drew other than the briefest trickle in reply.

Slowly, to Barbara, the time wore on. More and more weary of the monotony, sick of the smell of chocolate, she became consumed with restlessness.

All the social world had left long ago. From the glass walls of the winter garden came the exhilarating, if garish, strains of dance music, tantalizing in their infectious rhythm. Barbara hummed the tune, tapping her foot in unison, occasionally surprising her companions by performing a few revolutions round the tent. In the middle of one of these she halted abruptly, for a shadow had fallen across the rays of the sun streaming athwart the stall.

"Come and dance with me," said Croft.

Her face expressed blank astonishment.

"Oh!" she exclaimed, confusedly. "I—we—only the villagers usually dance here."

"Oh, good lord!"

The amused contempt in his voice made her flush. Then, conscious of having given a wrong impression of detestable snobbery, she felt furious with herself.

"You never swerve from convention, I suppose?" he asked, watching her sensitive face in his disconcerting manner.

She looked away, uncomfortably self-conscious.

"I—Oh—" She gave an embarrassed laugh. An opening door brought a louder riot of music flooding in with the evening sunshine. "I—really don't know."

Then some queer, psychological wave seemed to pass across the sweet stall. It brought a strange current of air from the great Unknown without, from towering mountains and deep seas scarcely dreamed of in this pretty corner of orthodoxy. And it emanated from the figure standing motionless before her, whose very appearance seemed symbolical of freedom—the freedom of mind and freedom from petty tyrannies, which is only gained by depth of vision, breadth of outlook, contact with the forces whose existence was beginning to stir faint echoes within her soul.

"Come!" he exclaimed suddenly, an undertone of impatience sounding in his words.

"Very well," she said in a low voice, "I will come."

He threw back his head a little, and smiled again.

No modern affectation showed in Croft's dancing. He abandoned himself to the rhythm of the music, with an ease which swept the girl along in sympathetic exhilaration. She forgot the imperfect floor, the clumsy couples, the staring eyes, mere instinctive dislike of this strange man, and surrendered herself to the rare joy of perfect harmony in movement. When, for an instant, she glanced up at her partner, she saw in his face a corresponding light which filled her with a momentary sense of fellowship.

Afterward, they strolled out on the terrace, flooded in the red gold of the setting sun. Barbara sat upon the low parapet. Croft flung his long legs over and drew out his cigarettes. Presently she found his glance fixed upon her.

"Well?" he asked, without preliminaries. "What about our little trip? Have you counted all the risks?"

"Risks? No! Or I might never get there!"

His quick look of approval was lost on the girl, as she glanced away with a laugh.

"When there is a chance of getting your heart's desire, would you count risks?"

"No!" he ejaculated warmly.

"That's my creed."

From the determined lines of his well-cut lips, she judged this to be the truth.

"But your heart's desire?" he went on; "what do you mean by that?"

She flushed faintly; the shy reserve in her nature ever made personal talk difficult.

"Surely you have that?" he suggested boldly, waving his cigarette toward the diamond scintillating on her finger.

"Oh, yes. Yes. I have, of course in that way," she replied hurriedly.

The band struck up a stirring jazz tune, a medley bringing hints of tomtoms, drums, rattling castanets, the uncouth music of the East. . . .

"Oh!" she cried involuntarily, starting up; then sitting down again. "But you could never understand," she muttered.

"What?" He watched her closely, his cigarette burning, forgotten, between his fingers.

"The craving to live—really live!—for a time! To get out into the world; to—to experience everything instead of just reading about it all; to—feel life itself! In huge cities, among vast crowds. I want to find out—"

She hesitated, looking away over the meadows, with a puzzled frown. "Something seems lost, missing in some way. I—I can't explain." She turned back to him, the color in her face heightened. But he did not laugh as Hugh would have done.

"Huge cities?" he queried slowly. "You think you will find it in them? Why not in remote villages?"

"Oh, no!" she cried. "Nothing ever happens in them! Villages are only full of little obscurities. I want to sample bigger things—"

"They will be but 'little obscurities' in fresh places," he interrupted. "The whole world is only composed of little notes, you know, and their reverberations."

She listened in surprise. In her experience, talk like this, especially from a man, was unusual; but from one famed for a life of action it seemed little short of miraculous.

"Well," she said, enjoying the novelty of metaphor, "I want to feel the big 'reverberations'—to get among deep chords, in fact!"

"They might be rather overpowering. It's having some sort of right keynote that counts."

Naturally you begin such a story with ideas of your own about such a situation. See if you stick to them.

English Law a Paradox

One may be fined for stopping a dog fight or not stopping a dog fight. But the post office can record something even better, the Manchester Guardian relates. At a seaside town a man walked into a post office followed by a huge dog. A woman was already at the public counter, and she also had a dog. The two dogs began to fight.

The man did not attempt to interfere. He appealed to the girl assistant, who was on the safe side of the counter, to come over and part the combatants. She declined, very naturally. Eventually the turmoil ceased, and then the dog owner lodged a complaint with the postmaster that his subordinate had permitted confusion in the office and upset the public.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

HOUSEHOLD INSECTS AND DISEASE

PUDDIN' HEAD WILSON may have been right when he said that a certain amount of fleas was good for a dog. But no one will claim that any amount of fleas or of any of the other common household insects are good for a human being. If they don't do anything worse, fleas, mosquitoes, cockroaches, fleas, bedbugs, and various kinds of lice are the cause of a great deal of personal discomfort and irritation and no normal person cares to have them around. When in addition they are shown to be a positive danger to health and in many cases to carry disease, there remains no reason why every intelligent person should not use every possible means to exterminate them.

The common house fly is found everywhere. It lays its eggs in manure and other filth and refuse commonly found around human habitations.

Flees carry, either in their bodies or on their feet, the germs which cause typhoid fever, tuberculosis, summer diarrhea, and diphtheria. They may also carry erysipelas, conjunctivitis, anthrax and gangrene. The clearest case against the fly is that of transmitting typhoid by crawling over and contaminating food, especially milk. It is not entirely responsible for any one disease but its known filthy habits and the number of germs found on it ought to bar it from any clean and respectable household.

Those insects which, on account of their habits, have long been associated with men have always been regarded with more or less dislike and in some cases with positive abhorrence. Naturally, when our present-day knowledge of disease began to develop, they fell under grave suspicion as possible disease carriers. All the facts on that subject have not yet been obtained. In some cases their guilt has been positively proven. In others, the best we can do at present is to render the Scotch verdict of "Not proven."

Just what do we know on the subject? Our present knowledge is admirably summed up in a recent number of the bulletin of the New Jersey state board of health, in which H. B. Weiss tells what we know and what we suspect.

Mosquitoes, as is now generally known, are direct carriers of malaria and yellow fever, as well as some tropical diseases which practically are never found in this country.

Fleas, especially the rat flea, carry bubonic plague. Bedbugs, the most disagreeable of all household insects, have long been under suspicion but so far have not been convicted. Cockroaches, the commonest of kitchen pests, are known to carry several germs but there is no evidence that they are actual carriers of any disease. Lice are the cause of a number of skin diseases and the body louse is the direct carrier of typhus and spotted fevers.

So while these insects may not be guilty of everything of which they are suspected, they have been convicted of enough crimes to make them undesirable citizens.

FORMING GOOD HABITS

HABIT is one of the strongest influences in our lives. Whether good or bad, they largely determine our success or failure. Each one of us forms his own habits. They are not inherited from our parents. A new-born baby has no habits but even a very young infant quickly acquires habits. In fact, the baby in its first year is largely ruled by instinct which it inherits and habits which it acquires. If it early forms habits of regularity and self control, it will live a happy and tranquil life. If it is allowed to be governed by its whims and desires, it will be a cause of annoyance to others and of unhappiness to itself. So it is too much to say that a child's whole future life may easily be determined by the habits which it is allowed to form in the first year of life.

So important is this matter of early habits regarded by experts in child training that a special clinic on habits has been established in Boston, where parents are given advice about their children, how to correct bad habits and how to aid them in forming good habits. Doctor Thom, the director of the clinic, has written a pamphlet for mothers and nurses which contains much valuable advice on child management and which is regarded as so important for those interested in the training of children that the Children's Bureau of the United States government has issued it as an official bulletin.

The health, happiness and efficiency of the adult men and women, says Doctor Thom, depends to a large extent on the habits they form during early life. Far more than we realize, we are creatures of habit, which is after all only the tendency which we all have, in common with all animals, to repeat what we have done before, until we do it unconsciously and involuntarily. Our everyday acts, our manners and our opinions are largely a matter of habit and the ease and accuracy with which we do most of the acts of life depend on whether in early life we have formed good or bad habits.

Help That Bad Back!

Is a bad back wearing you out? Are you lame, aching, nervous and depressed? Suffer headaches, dizziness and disturbing bladder irregularities? These are often signs of kidney disorder and too dangerous to neglect. Your kidneys keep the blood stream pure. Once they slow up, poisons accumulate and upset the whole system. Why risk neglect? If you suspect your kidneys, give Doan's Pills a trial. Doan's Pills have been used successfully over thirty-five years. Are recommended by thousands. Ask your neighbor!

MRS. BORGELIN'S REMARKABLE RECOVERY

Gives Credit for Restored Health to Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. All Women Interested

MRS. OSCAR F. BORGELIN
FOREST CITY, IOWA

Forest City, Iowa.—"My first child lived only a short time and I was sick for a year after. When I bent over and raised myself up again I could almost scream with pain in my back. One day I was so bad that I had to leave my washing and get ready to go to the doctor. He gave me medicine, but it did no more good than if I drank just water. Once when we had been in town a little while telling about Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound was left in our car. I have taken five bottles of the Vegetable Compound now and I do all my housework and help with the milking, and taking care of chickens and garden. Besides I have a fine baby girl eight months old, just the picture of health, and I am feeling fine myself. You may use this letter as a testimonial and I will answer any letters asking about the Vegetable Compound."—Mrs. OSCAR F. BORGELIN, Route No. 5, Forest City, Iowa.

A Bad Case of Nerves Relieved

Denver, Colorado.—"I was very despondent, blue and sad all the time, which was worse than real pain, and extremely nervous, with no appetite. I was this way for about two years and thought no one cared for me. My mother had had the same trouble and had taken Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound for it. I tried everything else, then I began to take it. I soon had a better appetite and restored mental condition. I moved to a bright, sunny house, began calling on different people, and changed many other things. I also used Lydia E. Pinkham's Sanative Wash for my female weakness. With the aid of your medicines I am now a fairly healthy, happy and contented woman. I've used the Vegetable Compound at different times and will say it always helps me over the bad spells that come to every woman past 40 years."—Mrs. HELEN FINE, 35 South Washington Street, Denver, Colorado.

Big American Industry

The manufacture of boots and shoes is pre-eminently an American industry, due largely to the predominance of American inventions, methods and machinery. Undone Things

By REV. J. H. RALSTON, D. D.
Dean of the Correspondence School, Moody Bible Institute, Chicago.

TEXT—These ought ye to have done, and not to leave the other undone.—Matt. 23:23.

A few Sundays ago a distinguished minister was filling a leading pulpit in a great city of our country. His subject was "Knowing God," in the development of which he spoke of the testimony of nature through science, then he elaborated somewhat on the philosophical arguments of God's existence, referring to the argument from design, the holding of the idea of a personal God and the moral argument. He then reached his climax in giving men's experience of God as the most reliable method of reaching a true knowledge of Him. Not a word as to the Bible giving such knowledge, nor a word as to Jesus Christ being the manifestation of God, the express image of the Father. He omitted the chief argument, the knowledge of God through Christ—he simply left it out. In that case, however, a faithful listener informed him by letter that he was shocked by his sermon, and secured the quasi apology on the ground that the preacher's time was limited. We might ask, Is not that quite common as we study many religious subjects? The teaching of the text is plain. Some things undone leave a guilt upon one which is as real as the guilt of doing things forbidden. "These ought ye to have done." The obligation in the Word is beyond dispute.

J. H. Ralston, D. D.

In olden times the question was asked, Why speak ye not a word about bringing back the king? The guilt of neglect in bringing back the king was looked upon as treason. There may be many applications of the text. There are many undone things that will rise in judgment against man, but we now confine our thought to what is left undone respecting Jesus Christ, the Son of God. The illustration used in the beginning of this sermon bristles with suggestion. There was left undone a proper mention of Jesus Christ as the highest manifestation of God. He that hath seen Jesus Christ hath seen the Father. Let us hold our thought, therefore, to the things undone respecting Jesus Christ.

First there are those who are not indifferent to religious truths, but who think they can get on without Christ. They want to be saved, but they cannot brook the sight of Christ, the flowing of His blood, the accepting of His death as a substitute for their own. They follow Christ as an ethical and social leader. They try to be disciples sitting at His feet and listening to some of His teaching. They take Him as an exemplar of a most self-sacrificing man. But what are these people doing? They are simply leaving out the crucified Christ. They are fashioning another Christ. They are offering another gospel, some such gospel as Paul had reference to in his letter to the Galatians.

Jesus Christ is not now visible to the human eye, yet He is as real as the one who walked the hills of Galilee, or sat by the seaside, or ate in the home of Martha and Mary. He is not neglectful or unconcerned about things on this earth, but is waiting until His enemies be made His footstool. That time will come, the greatest event that the world can conceive of as possible in the future. What electricity has done thus far, what taking advantage of currents of air, what accomplishments in material construction man has already attained will then seem to be as child's play. When Jesus Christ will come out of the clouds with His saints, when He shall meet the Antichrist at Armageddon in the battle that will be as great as many of the world's greatest battles combined, when He takes the throne of David His father, and reigns in righteousness, there will be conditions on the earth beyond the fondest dreams of man. But the men of the world slight these things, they leave them out. Why not sometimes say something about bringing back the King?

But how few put Jesus Christ into their lives! To do this there must be the clearest personal confidence in the person of Jesus Christ, there must be confident belief in what the Holy Scriptures teach about Him, and the opening of hearts to His coming within. Paul caught the vision, he lived in Christ and Christ lived in him, and this realization is possible to all, and being possible places an obligation which confronts all and imposes as great guilt as if indeed men had Christ in their own hands and like Pilate had condemned Him to death.

God Never Fails

God never forgets. He never loses count of prayers nor of time. Prayers may seem unanswered. But, when the heart's in right touch there's always thoughtful love in the delay. The waiting-time is a training-time for us. More is being planned for by God than had been planned for by us. Hannah found this out with Samuel, and Zacharias with John. Let's keep faith's fire burning even through long waits and heavy rains.—J. H. Jowett.

Lesson for September 20

PAUL WRITES TO THE THESSALONIANS

LESSON TEXT—I Thess. 2:1-12.
GOLDEN TEXT—"In everything give thanks."—I Thess. 5:18.
PRIMARY TOPIC—Paul's Love for His Friends.
JUNIOR TOPIC—How Paul Worked in Thessalonica.
INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Paul's Devotion to His Work.
YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—The Spirit and Method of Paul's Work.

While the lesson committee has selected this brief passage in the second chapter for printing, the intention was to present the message of the entire epistle. It was on Paul's second missionary journey that the church at Thessalonica was founded as seen in the last lesson. After crossing into Macedonia he preached the Gospel at Philippi, where he was imprisoned. From Philippi he went to Thessalonica. The people there were largely Gentiles.

I. The Salutation (ch. 1:1).
Timothy and Silas were associated with Paul in this missionary journey, and they are associates of Paul in this message.

II. Paul's Thanksgiving (1:2-10).
1. For Their Faith, Love and Hope (v. 2-4).

This triad of graces testified of their election of God.

2. How They Received the Gospel (v. 5).

It was in the power of the Holy Spirit.

3. Joyful Obedience (v. 6).

4. Exemplary Lives (v. 7).

5. Missionary activities (v. 8).

6. Turned From Idols (vv. 9-10).

III. Character of Paul's Ministry (2:1-12).

It would seem from this defense that some of the Jews had called into question his ministry. He defends himself by showing the character of his ministry:

1. It Was Courageous (vv. 1-2).

His persistence in spite of shameful persecution proved his devotion to the Lord and His work.

2. Honest and Guileless (vv. 3-4).

As one sent of God, he faithfully ministered unto them, not courting man's favor.

3. Without Flattering Words (v. 5).

4. Without a Claim of Covetousness (v. 5).

5. Did Not Seek Glory From Man (v. 6).

6. Gentle and Affectionate (vv. 7-8).

So vitally did he enter into the lives of the people that he displayed a gentleness even as a nursing mother with her children.

7. Unselfish (v. 9).

In order that his motive be not questioned, he labored night and day for his support.

8. Irreproachable and Blameless (v. 10).

He did not claim to be faultless, but he challenged them as to his blamelessness.

9. His lofty Aim (vv. 11-12).

That they would walk worthy of God in keeping with their high calling.

IV. How the Gospel Was Received (2:13-16).

As the very Word of God.

V. Paul's Desire for the Thessalonians (2:17-18).

1. He Endeavored to See Them Face to Face, but Was Hindered by Satan (2:17-18).

2. He Declared Them to Be His Crown of Rejoicing (2:19-20).

His hope of meeting his converts at Christ's second coming was his crown of rejoicing.

3. Timothy Sent to Them (3:1-10).

It was his report that furnished the information concerning this church.

4. He Prayed for Them (3:11-13).

VI. Sins Rebuked (4:1-12).

1. Unchastity (vv. 1-5).

2. Dishonesty (vv. 6-8).

3. Lack of Brotherly Love (vv. 9-10).

4. For Being Bystanders (v. 11).

5. Idleness (v. 11).

VII. Doctrinal Errors Corrected (4:13; 5:11).

1. Not to Sorrow Unduly (v. 13).

It was because of their misunderstanding of the meaning of the coming of the Lord that they were indulging in excessive sorrow.

2. The Reason Assigned (vv. 13-18).

(1) The departed saints will come back when Jesus comes (v. 14).

(2) Living Believers Will Be Caught Up With Them (v. 17).

3. The Time of the Lord's Coming Unknown (5:1-11).

The exhortation is "be ready," watch.

VIII. Concluding Exhortations (5:12-28).

Sin, Grace, Humility

No sin is so offensive to God, and so injurious to the soul as pride. No grace is so commended, both by precept and example, as humility.—Ryle.

Truth

Truth is not of man's making, but of God's revelation. Hear it in the house of God.—American Lutheran.

To Be Thankful

To be thankful is to be especially Christlike.—Russell H. Conwell.

Woman Baptist Minister

The first woman to enter the Baptist ministry in Great Britain is Miss Annie D. Lodwick, recently ordained pastor of Pishah Baptist church, Cresswell Quay, Pembroke, Wales. Rev. Miss Lodwick is twenty-six years of age. Her church has six deacons and a membership of 130. Her call resulted from a ten days' mission conducted by her at the church, when she so impressed the church officials that they asked her to become the minister.

High Finance

The Chinese find it difficult to understand the British point of view, as has been evidenced in recent events, and perhaps, illustrated by the experience of a gentleman visiting Canton a short time ago who saw some mah-jongg sets being sold at $5 each. He inquired what he would be charged if he ordered 250 sets, and was told $5 each. "You see," was the explanation, "it is so much more trouble to make 250 sets than it is to make one, so we have to charge more!"

Finance in Afghanistan

An ingenious scheme has been devised for financing the Afghan embassies abroad. Every embassy in Kabul has to pay the same rent there for accommodation as the Afghan minister in the corresponding foreign capital. Colonel Humphrey's mud bungalow, for instance, costs his government as much as the house in Grosvenor gardens, London, where the Afghan envoy resides.—Lowell Thomas in Asia Magazine.

Dancing Old as Race

The oldest people known to have inhabited the earth had forms of dancing not unlike those which still exist. The first ballet, however, was given in Italy in 1439, and was introduced into France a century after.

Bound to Be Dissatisfied

It's just like a fellow who has been fussing for rain to grumble because he has got to get up in the night and close the windows when it comes, says the observing cuss.

Japs Extend Phones

In a plan to improve the telephone system of the country the government of Japan plans to install 50,000 telephones and 10,000 miles of new toll lines within the next five years.

If some men were known by the company they keep they wouldn't be able to keep it long.

The Effect of Good Dressing

BENJAMIN FRANKLIN appeared at the French court dressed like an ordinary farmer. The treaty of alliance between the united colonies and France was signed against a most sumptuous background of gorgeously dressed courtiers in satin breeches, gold-braided coats, buckled slippers and powdered wigs. The king was there in all his regal splendor. The assembly room was bedecked with the most lavish brilliance of the period.

And in the midst of all this splendor stood the American envoy in his faded old brown suit and holding a shabby, fur cap in his hands. This incongruous appearance was taken, both at home and abroad, as being representative of American simplicity and democracy, but nothing could be further from the facts.
Franklin had, it was afterward learned, ordered a suitable court costume from his tailor, one that would enable him to take his place with satisfaction among the diplomats and nobles of Europe.
But the costume was not finished in time.

The effect of proper dressing is just as great upon a man as it is with women. It gives him a self-confidence and self-esteem that is not gained in any other way. The very fact that some men tend to be careless and negligent about their clothes gives an added asset to the man who does know what to wear and when to wear it.

The American citizen of today demands a higher standard of tailoring and appearance than ever before. Each year has brought an increased fastidiousness among men. Starting with a well-tailored custom-made suit, the 1925 man selects shoes and socks a few shades darker, a hat that will tone with but not match the suit and a tie that affords a pleasing but not pronounced contrast. He looks well, he knows it and is in keeping with the slogan,
"dressed to succeed."

OAK LAWN

OAK LAWN STANDARD
SCHOOL NOTES. DIST. 122.

When you view Oak Lawn with all its spirit of growth and prosperity making it one of the most desirable places for a thrifty, industrious and home-loving people, you cannot overlook the Elmore Subdivision and the expansive west side with all its possibilities and prospects for the future. You will also notice that this new community and expansive plain, which will soon be annexed to our village, is located in School District No. 122 and the new Public School, commonly called the "Standard School" located on 95th Street near Ridge-land Avenue, is fast becoming an interesting community center.

The school board members, Mr.
Trizenberg, Mr. Harnew, and Mr.
Dushop, have very wisely planned and provided a new, modern brick school building and it certainly is a credit to the district. Its beauty speaks of itself.

A new iron fence, enclosing the grounds, has recently been constructed and serves as a dependable means of protection as well as adding to the beauty of the grounds.

Mr. Scheffler of Oak Lawn also did an excellent job of interior decorating in the building, during the summer vacation, and had everything "spick and span" ready school to begin on September 1st, with Mr. Wiley Simmons as principal and Mrs. Pearl Simmons, his wife, as teacher of the lower grades.

School is progressing nicely and we see all indications of a successful term this year. We hope that our parents and teachers will give each other their hearty co-operation.

"Three cheers for our school and Hooray for Oak Lawn!"
LET'S ALL BE BOOSTERS!

Oak Lawn has a fine public school building, two stories high splendid rooms and a large assembly hall. But unfortunately the only entrance was the one front door, which fact caused the State Fire Department to condemn the building. Therefore, the school board at once had a fine fire escape built which was completed this past week and school opened on Monday.

The following teachers make up the faculty for this year: Prin. Miss Ophelia Kelley, Miss Lydia Kobick,
Miss Elsie Skinner, Mrs. Hazel
Jones, Miss Genevieve Campbell and Miss Kuessele.

A miscellaneous shower was given by Mrs. Max Studt in her home last Wednesday evening in honor of Miss Florence Kasch and her approaching marriage to Mr. Louis Gunther, both of Oak Lawn. A pleasant evening was had and lunch was served. The bride elect received pretty gifts.

Mr. and Mrs. M. O'Brien, Mr. and Mrs. Olaf Larson attended a Postmasters' banquet at the Elk's Club in Blue Island last Thursday evening. After the good eats, Mr.
Wm. Canavan, assistant superintendent of Mails of Chicago, entertained with a stereopticon lecture concerning departmental work, entertained a company of friends at a party in their home Saturday night. A good time was had by all present. A delightful lunch was served.

Mr. and Mrs. John A. Kohler and Mr. and Mrs. Ray O'Brien were guests at dinner Sunday in the
Wm. O'Brien home.

Mr. and Mrs. Scheckley have moved to Oak Lawn from Chicago located at 51st Ave., and 97th St.
Oak Lawn gives them a hearty welcome!

Mormon People Have Tragic History

Salt Lake City, Utah.
Sept. 1, 1925.

Dear Editor News-Bulletin:—
Have been spending several days in Salt Lake City, in renewing my acquaintance with the tragic history of the Mormon people.

We are safe in saying, no one church denomination has suffered more bitterly from attack, nor enjoyed greater loyalty from its followers than this denomination, known as, The Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints.

This religious denomination, founded on the Book of Mormon, is not a religion, but simply another division of the Religion founded by Jesus of Nazareth.

The distinguishing feature of the Mormon church, is the Book of Mormon. This book purports to relate the dealings of God with his people on the western continent.

It seems that in 1823, Joseph Smith, a farmer boy barely eighteen years of age, born in Vermont, claimed that an angel of God appeared to him and advised him that certain plates had been hidden, on which was engraved the story of the dealings with his people.

By means of a secret key, these alleged plates were translated into the English language.

Nothing very strange nor unique about the introduction to the world of the Mormon religion. All religions have their origin in the same sort of mystery. However, the world is somewhat more skeptical than it was two or three or five or ten thousand years ago, and mere pretence and bluff do not go quite as far as it did a few thousand years back. However Joseph Smith did gain considerable following. The Book of Mormon was published in 1830 and immediately the Mormon Church was organized at Fayette, Seneca County New York.

Persecution began immediately and membership grew correspondingly, as is nearly always the case. In 1831, the church moved to Kirtland, Ohio, thence to Independence, Mo., thence to Quincy, Ill., and later to Commerce, Ill., later called Nauvoo the beautiful.

Joseph Smith and his brother Hiram, were killed at Carthage, Ill., and John Taylor, later president of the church, was severely wounded by a mob while waiting a hearing.

With these sixteen years of heart breaking persecution, the church, under the leadership of Brigham Young, also of Vermont, determined to move to the far west, far beyond the reach of Governors, like Boggs of Missouri and Ford of Illinois. A few "Revelations" conveniently made, directed the movements of Young.

The company numbering 147, including 3 women and 4 children, under the leadership of Brigham Young, departed from Nauvoo Feb. 1847 and arrived in Salt Lake City near the present site on July 24, 1847.

When this little caravan started for the mountains, Utah was still a part of the Republic of Mexico.

However Utah became a part of the United States Feb. 2, 1848, was organized as a territory Sept. 9, 1850 with Brigham Young as Governor.

Caravan after caravan followed the westward trail along the Platte river, till in the sixties, the rail road was substituted for the ox team, so that today the Mormon church numbers nearly 1,000,000 members in Utah and many groups scattered throughout the world.

While visiting the Capitol Building, I gave several hours to the Pioneer section presenting souvenirs of the early days in Utah. No half day can be more delightfully occupied, by any one who enjoys exploring into the bypaths of history than the time given to this section.

There was the old square piano, purchased by Mrs. Ann Brooks Andrees in St. Louis, Mo., in 1854 and transported by her in wagon drawn by oxen to Provo, Utah. This piano obliged Mrs. Andrees to walk the entire distance. On arrival, the piano was placed in a tent and here she taught her two children and others of the neighborhood, their early lessons in music. Here is also shown the first Reed organ imported into Utah by Albert Carrington in 1865. Also a Melodeon purchased from the Gold Seekers, 1849 by Joseph Horne.

Many specimens of handy work is shown, such as Wool Wreaths, Wax Flowers, Hair Flowers, a Harp made in shape of Brigham Young for Thos. Giles, the blind harpist. A Hall Tree carved by Wm. Bell and Ralph Ramsey, which stood for many years in the office of Brigham Young. This handsome piece of furniture was given first prize in many fairs.

Also the first chair made in Utah in the plant of McGary Bros., at Ogden in 1865, and 100 other items all associated with that most interesting Pioneer period of early Utah. The first newspaper published in Utah—The Desert News—appeared June 15, 1850. The first railroad train arrived May 10, 1850. Utah is today one of the big states with an area of 84,990 sq. miles.

The industry and fair dealing of the Mormons, has gradually secured for them an honored place in the social and economic life of the nation. Yours truly

F. H. Monroe

Tinley Park

Mr. E. E. Rice of the Tinley Park rural mail carrier force, his wife and Mr. and Mrs. Ray of Orland returned Saturday from a trip of 1600 miles thru the east. They motored in an Overland car and in all the mileage covered they had no engine or tire trouble whatever.

They visited Niagara Falls and many points in Pennsylvania, Ohio and other points. They found that many private homes along the way took in tourists. Lodging for $1.50 for two persons and 50c a night for garage fees.

Walter Mancke, our tonsorial artist is serving on jury duty in Chicago this week.

Mr. and Mrs. Englehart of Bancroft, Nebraska who are on their honeymoon are guests at the Fred Nielsen home.

Mr. Boppell, a chef of Chicago who has had much experience in the best hotels, has been engaged by Lorenz & Rein to take charge of their new restaurant kitchen. Mr. Boppell is a past master in the art of making pies, especially pumpkin pies. Lorenz & Rein are now taking orders for home made pie which will relieve the busy house wife of this part of the family baking. The pies will be delivered right to the home of the customer ordering. A trial will convince that these pies can't be beat.

The restaurant of Lorenz & Rein is being well patronized, especially on Saturday nights and all day Sunday. The chicken dinners are proving quite a drawing card.

The Tinley Park Parent Teachers Association met last Friday.

Mr. and Mrs. Albert Ickstadt of Chicago were the guests Sunday of the formers parents, Dr. and Mrs. I. Ickstadt.

Elmer Keuch who has been quite ill is getting along nicely.

Worth

Rev. Paul Sanders, pastor of the Worth Community Church is now in Rochester, N. Y., under the care of his brother, Dr. Edward Sanders. We all hope that Mr. Sanders will soon return, strong and ready to begin the winter activities.

The first Sunday of his absence, Rev. Mr. Hartman of Evanston, filled the pulpit. The Sunday Evening Club had planned a breakfast in the Forest Preserve for Sunday morning but on account of rain, had a supper instead. Mr. Hartman spent such an enjoyable evening that he suggested having another breakfast which is planned for September 20th if the weather is favorable.

On September 13th, the congregation was agreeably surprised to find Mr. Perry Bishop occupying the pulpit assisted by Miss Margaret Lysen and Miss Hazel Stromberg. Surely Mr. Bishop has missed his calling by not entering the ministry.

The service was interrupted for a few minutes when Elmer Lysen fainted, but he was reported feeling better towards evening.

At last! The church is to have new song books. This event is due to the great success of the Musicale which was given by the Worth Choral Society on September 4th. The only disappointment was the non-appearance of the Worth Rainbow orchestra owing to the absence of King Jazz, (otherwise George Lucas) their conductor. We hope he will be on the job NEXT time. Mr. Albert Soderland, violinist, proved very entertaining with his medley of Swedish folk songs and of course, no program would be complete without Perry Bishop and his humorous readings. Elmer Daniels, our coming young violinist, made his first public appearance playing several popular songs accompanied by Miss Harriett Crandall, pianist. Elmer is under the complete tutelage of Miss Imogene Crandall.

Mr. Stanton, our former pastor, and his wife stopped on their way back from Texas where they have been vacationing for a few weeks, to visit the Stewart family. Mr. Stanton is now pastor of the Methodist Church at Antioch, Ill.

Don't forget the Bazaar which is to be held at the Worth Community Church on October 22nd.

Miss Elsie VanDeBurg is to succeed Miss Ruth Mitchell as Librarian. Miss Mitchell is unable to continue her duties as Librarian on account of entering school. The Library is open on Tuesday and Friday evenings from 7:30 to 9:00. Be sure to take advantage of this opportunity.

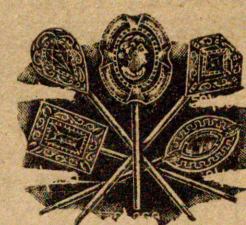

Mrs. Wm. Leipstroff fell down her basement stairs last week and as a result is in a very serious condition.

Mrs. Mary K. Marrs is in Rochester, Minn., under the care of the Mayo clinic. We wish her a speedy recovery and hope to see her back in Worth soon.

Miss Nellie Crandall spent Sunday with her sister in Chicago.

Mr. and Mrs. Jos. Kauffman, Sr., are very proud of their new grandson who was christened Sunday, Sept. 13th. We wish little Junior all the luck in the world.

Our Fire Department is very much in demand being called out several times in one day. Chief Wm

Rising Young Star Fond of Cooking

Claiborne Foster, that clever little lady who makes Berry Coppers play

"Applesauce," the outstanding comedy success of the year, is an extraordinary young woman. She is generally recognized as one of the rising young stars of the American stage and her services and company are always in demand but such is her nature that she shuns the "bright lights" and leads a simple and unostentatious life wherever she may be. She is essentially a home girl, being

Claiborne Foster, passionately fond of cooking, an art at which she is very adept, and much of her leisure time is spent in the modest little kitchenette of her apartment. When not playing in some production, Miss Foster may be found at her home a short distance from New York city, where she revels in the joys of cooking for the whole family and her friends and spends her vacations doing the work of the ordinary housewife.

There are two dishes which are regarded with more favor by Miss Foster, than are any others. These are Bronk shrimps and chicken en casserole. She uses the simplest of formulas but insists upon the purest of ingredients, using pure butter, and evaporated milk. The recipes that she uses are:

Bronk Shrimps.
2 cups shrimps, Yolks 2 eggs
canned or fresh 1/2 cup evaporated
4 tbsp. fat milk
1/2 tsp. salt 1/2 cup water
Few grains cayenne 1 tsp. flour
2 tsp. lemon juice

Clean the shrimps, and cook in half the fat for 2 minutes; add seasoning and lemon; cook 2 minutes longer. Remove shrimps and make a white sauce of the remaining fat, flour and milk; when thickened add yolks of eggs slightly beaten, stirring in quickly and cooking two minutes; add the shrimps.

Chicken en Casserole.
1 tender chicken 1 cup evaporated for roasting milk
2 tbsp. butter 1 tsp. chopped
2 tbsp. lard parsley
Salt and pepper 2 cups chopped
1 pint hot water mushrooms

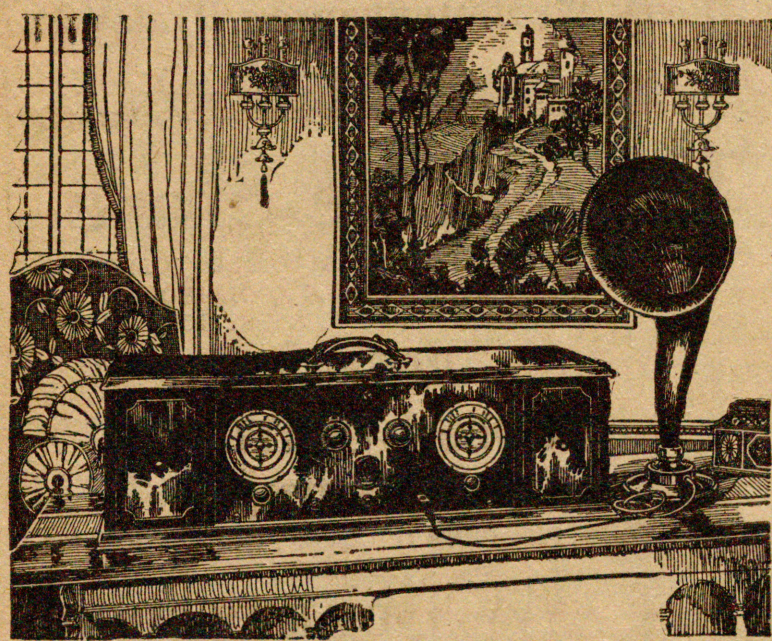

Clean chicken, split down back, and lay breast upward in casserole. Spread fat over breast, dust with salt and pepper, add hot water, cover closely and cook in hot oven one hour. When nearly tender put in evaporated milk, mushrooms and parsley. Cover again, and cook 20 minutes longer. Serve hot in casserole.

Farmers from the vicinity of Salisbury, N. C., make a tour of inspection in their automobiles early each fall, securing information and ideas in farming from their brethren in neighboring states. HOW TO SOLVE A CROSSWORD PUZZLE

When the correct letters are placed in the white spaces this puzzle will spell words both vertically and horizontally. The first letter in each word is indicated by a number, which refers to the definition listed below the puzzle. Thus No. 1 under the column headed "horizontal" defines a word which will fill the white spaces up to the first black square to the right, and a number under "vertical" defines a word which will fill the white squares to the next black one below. No letters go in the black spaces. All words used are dictionary words, except proper names. Abbreviations, slang, initials, technical terms and obsolete forms are indicated in the definitions.

Tells Why He Can
Now Eat Hearty

"A letter which I read in the paper about Carter's Little Liver Pills fitted my own case so closely that I could not help trying them and am very happy I did." So writes Mr. Frank J. Trumbull of Jersey City, N. J., whose letter goes on to say, "I had heard about Carter's Little Liver Pills for years but never knew they helped overcome poor appetite and sour stomach, until I read about another man in the same plight who took Carter's with good results. I tried them and can honestly say that they freed me of nasty gas on stomach, so that I can now eat without getting bilious, and they improved my appetite fully 100%. You can rest assured that from now on I will boost Carter's Little Liver Pills whenever I can."

One Week More And the Great Contest Closes

One week from Saturday night at 8 o'clock the winners of this district will be announced and on Sunday, Sept. 27 the winner of the automobile and the other prizes will be announced at the Rock Creek Country Club located 5 miles from Joliet on the Troy road. The standing this week shows that the Joliet girl, Miss Janke is in the lead for the automobile with Miss Esther Hellmuth of Mokena giving her a merry chase. Miss Marcella Eichler and Miss Edna Weidner of Oak Lawn are going like a house afire to over come the lead. Set so far by the two leaders and next week we expect great results from that section. We find the other contestants in the district around Joliet saving their energy for the last week. The last effort will win the valuable prizes.

SPEED WILL WIN

Crucible test is now at hand if you ever intend doing anything big in this race, do it now! Instead of being the second, third or fourth get up at the top and stay there.

Now is the time to secure summountable reserved votes. A few long term subscriptions now may be the very ones needed to cinch the big prizes.

COUNT ON FACTS ONLY

As a timely warning, don't try to figure just how many votes it will take to win, for you will surely fail to get enough. Don't be afraid of having too many votes. It would be better to win the prize you most desire by a million votes more, than enough, than to get left by 100,000 votes or so, representing a mere handful of subscriptions. At any rate, Saturday will, to a considerable extent, tell the story.

We can help only by telling you how. Your fate is in your own hands! Your own subscriptions count!

Then He Understood

A little Neodesha (Kan.) boy, according to the Sun, was shown a drop of water through a powerful microscope, and was impressed at the tiny objects which he was told were microbes. "I know now," he said, "what bites you when you drink soda water."

Sure of One Thing

The sun was going down, clouds were banking up, and they had driven for miles in silence. Finally, the wife asked, "Do you know where you are, darling?" Friend husband stepped on the accelerator and replied a bit shortly: "No. If I did we wouldn't be here."

Producing Liquid Air

Liquid air is a transparent, limpid and intensely cold liquid, slightly blue in color, and of about the same density as water. It is prepared by subjecting air to great pressure and then cooling it by its own expansion to a temperature below the boiling point of its constituents (nitrogen, 194 degrees centigrade; oxygen, 183 degrees centigrade). Its chief use is as a refrigerant.

His Instructions

The broker was very sick, and at times delirious. In one of his lucid moments he asked the nurse what the last readings had shown his temperature to be. "One hundred and one," she said. "Good," said the patient. "When it gets to 101½, sell."
